Super Secret Spy Training

When becoming a super secret spy, one must first be acquainted with phonetics standard to most military ops, as well as other tools of the trade. When learning to decode hidden messages, if you come across words like lima that seem out of context in a message, be vigilant to take note. If we were in India, your training would have started with “bravo, congratulations for joining the team!” But here, Romeo, we only reserve that praise for the alpha team. Remember Romeo, this is not a job for just any yankee. You can’t just go all Leeroy Jenkins on us – Let’s leave the bravos for the Oscars.

Sometimes you may find yourself sifting through what you think is garbage, but just like Oscar the Grouch, if you dig in the trash long enough, you will find something worthwhile. Kilos of valuable intel could be found in the most unusual places (and you generally don’t get shot at for going through the trash can, so that’s a plus.)

Your first mission details will be given to you at the cross streets of Sierra and Pine. Your contact will approach you and say “Did you lose something?” and you will identify yourself by using the coded response: [REDACTED].

Good luck, recruit!

This message will self-destruct after being solved.
